Description:

Summary In this edition of his classic story, The Priest with Dirty Clothes, Dr. R.C. Sproul continues his project of illustrating theological concepts for children. In this book, he teaches the concept of imputation, which lies at the heart of the important biblical doctrine of justification. Using the story of Joshua the high priest (Zechariah 3:15) as his jumping-off point, Dr. Sproul weaves a classic tale about a young priest who is invited to preach his first sermon before the king and his court. But on his way to the palace, he falls from his horse, getting his clothes hopelessly muddy. Jonathan finds that he needs powerful help if he is to stand before the king. This edition of The Priest with Dirty Clothes includes all-new illustrations by Justin Gerard and a new "For the Parents" section to help them bring out the truths of the book for their children.

On Sunday morning, I was preparing for worship. My ten year old son came bolting onto the platform. He had important news to share - news that probably had something to do with a new video game or Lego set. Nathan said with a smile on his face, R.C. Sproul's new book is out! We purchased the book and by 2:00 p.m. he had completed R.C.'s newest treasure. My son says, Dad, you've gotta read this book. It's really cool. Who can argue with an eager ten-year old who is excited about a new book by R.C. Sproul? The Priest With Dirty Clothes is a story based on Zechariah 3:1-5. The story illustrates the theological realities that emerge, including justification by faith alone and imputation. At the end of the day, Sproul intends to communicate rich biblical truth that make up the gospel message. The story-telling vehicle is a creative way to drive these important truths into the hearts and minds of children. Sproul's book is beautifully illustrated and is appropriate for young children and pre-teens. But the message Sproul communicates is for everyone - namely, sinners need a new set of clothes; they need a new heart. And Christ, our great high priest is the only One qualified to grant what we need most.
